2022 ORANGE BOOK OF RESULTS

Key Results Achieved at the Country Level

BACKGROUND

In 2022, UNFPA embarked on the first year of implementing the second of three consecutive strategic plans that calls for the acceleration of the three transformative results: (i) ending the unmet need for family planning; (ii) ending preventable maternal deaths; and (iii) ending gender-based violence and all harmful practices. UNFPA has operationalized six interconnected outputs to accelerate the achievement of the three transformative results: (i) policy and accountability; (ii) quality of care and services; (iii) gender and social norms; (iv) population change and data; (v) humanitarian action; and (vi) adolescents and youth.

UNFPA remains committed to strengthening transparency and accountability as key principles in achieving the outcome and output results of the strategic plan. The 2022 Orange Book of Results consists of over 700 output-level immediate results achieved during 2022 in 119 offices and two sub-regional offices in partnerships with governments, civil society organizations and women- and youth-led organizations.

The trends of the outcome level indicators can be accessed through the population data portal of UNFPA. The results included in the 2022 Orange Book of Results can be read as a compendium of the 2022 Executive Director Annual Report.

FOREWORD

by the Deputy Executive Director

Diene Keita
Deputy Executive Director (Programme)

During 2022, UNFPA programmes began implementing the second of three consecutive strategic plans. This second plan calls for the acceleration of the three transformative results: (i) ending the unmet need for family planning, (ii) ending preventable maternal deaths and (iii) ending gender-based violence and all harmful practices against women and girls, including child marriage and female genital mutilation.

During a year of compounding global crises that disproportionately affected women and girls, including those related to conflict, COVID-19, climate change and the global economy, UNFPA programmes worked on the front lines of the fight for sexual and reproductive health and rights. Key results achieved across UNFPA programme countries in 2022 include 1.4 million safe deliveries assisted in 39 humanitarian-affected countries and 111,425 girls saved from female genital mutilation.

These key results and others achieved by UNFPA country programmes in 2022 and every day would not be possible without our implementing partners, to whom we are grateful for their commitment and continued collaboration to translate our transformative vision into transformative action in more than 150 countries.

We would also like to extend our gratitude to United Nations Member States that continue to prioritize not only sexual and reproductive health and rights but also the acceleration of programmes and funding to achieve the three transformative results by 2030.

The 2022 Orange Book of Results offers a snapshot of our momentum, progress and unwavering commitment to the millions of people served by UNFPA across the world. Let us reflect on an ambitious 2022 and be inspired by the country-level results generated by UNFPA and our partners to continue endeavouring to realize the three transformative results in 2023.

MESSAGE FROM THE POLICY AND STRATEGY DIVISION DIRECTOR

Arthur Erken
Policy and Strategy
Division Director

As a development agency dedicated to supporting countries in dealing with their population and development challenges, UNFPA's work is focused on achieving results and progress towards three transformative results (aka the "three zeros"): (1) zero unmet need for family planning information and services; (2) zero preventable maternal deaths; and (3) zero gender-based violence and other harmful practices against women and girls, all to be achieved by no later than 2030. As such, UNFPA is strongly committed to reporting on our development results, in a transparent manner.

The 2022 Orange Book of Results features a selection of concrete results achieved in 2022 in countries receiving UNFPA support. As such, included in this book are results from the six regions where UNFPA delivers its programmes: the Arab States, Asia and the Pacific, Eastern Europe and Central Asia, East and Southern Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean, and West and Central Africa. In addition to offering transparency on and accountability for the work of UNFPA in 119 country programmes and 2 multi-country programmes, the 2022 Orange Book of Results also functions as a mechanism for knowledge sharing on successes across countries.

While this Orange Book could not capture all the results achieved by our country programmes during 2022, it offers a glimpse of the strides made by UNFPA around the world to accelerate the achievement of the three transformative results by 2030. With this in mind, I invite you to visit our results portal and the individual country office websites (links to which are provided in this book) for further reading, including on the detailed stories behind these country-level results.

As a source of inspiration and dedication to human-centered sustainable development, I hope that the 2022 Orange Book of Results and our results portal will inspire further work and much-needed progress to the achievement of the three transformative results, in particular for those left behind.
